

Rule Breaking Watercolors

Ryan Fox, instructor

Tuesday – Thursday, September 9, 10, 11

9:30 am to 3:00 pm each day

I've had the pleasure of taking two workshops with Ryan, and own both his DVDs. Ryan's instructions are thorough and allow the student to go on farther, pushing the envelope as much as they want. – Carol S.

Ryan Fox is an award-winning signature member of AWS as well as several state & regional societies.

Explore inventive techniques and new applications for traditional watercolor paint. Break the rules of watercolor with non-traditional methods of painting:

- magnetic paint painting,
- texturing with spattering paint,
- dark to light,
- wet-into-wet bokeh (shallow depth of field),
- palette knife painting, and more.

The workshop will include demonstrations, one-on-one consultations, and constructive critiques. All levels of students are welcome. Students may bring their own photographs or use the instructor's photographic resources.

Students will complete several quarter-sheet (11" x 15") paintings during each session.

Students can work from their own photographs or use samples provided by the instructor.

Cost for the workshop:

Thompson Valley Art League member: $395

Non-member: $425

See Student Supply List for materials that each student needs to bring.

Students at all levels are welcome to experience and learn in this workshop.
